THE SPEECH OF A GALLANT OFFICER.

Wednesday, Jan. 21, 1859.
Capt. J. W. Albert, U. S. A., had accepted the command of the National Blues, a handsomely equipped volunteer company, composed of a number of our most gallant young men. Upon assuming this position, Capt. Albert entertained the company in the most hospitable manner, in his elegant residence. After the festivities of the evening were concluded, the Captain addressed the Blues in the following eloquent, sensible, and soldier-like remarks:

Officers and Soldiers of the National Blues—In assuming command of this company, I deem it necessary to say a few words, in order that we may form a closer acquaintance. But first I must thank you for the great honor you have conferred upon me by electing me to this command. And now let me proceed to introduce myself to you.

As the U. S. Military Academy in 1842, my duties as an officer in the U. S. Topographical Engineers have engaged me in the surveys of lakes, bays, rivers, marshes, and military reconnoissances, the construction of field works, etc. My most arduous campaigns were under the command of Col. J. C. Fremont across the prairies in 1845; under Gen. Kearney in the invasion of Northern Mexico in 1847; under the command of Col. Munroe, Gen. Harney, and Col. Louis in Florida, 1857, '58, '59, and lastly, some experience in camp life with the army in Utah, under the command of Gen. Persifer Smith, who died suddenly in hand in the spring of 1858, and was succeeded by my former commander, Gen. Harney. I have known what camp life for the past few years. I have been on the northern prairies and in the Rocky Mountains, where winter in its season reigns supreme. I have known what camp life in the burning Florida, where the summer sun shines vertically down. Thus you see I have had some experience in the tented field. On two of these occasions I had the pleasure of meeting you in the ranks. You see I have had some experience in the tented field. On two of these occasions I had the pleasure of meeting you in the ranks.

My next service with volunteers was in Florida, where I was with the 1st Florida Cavalry, and the Kissimmee river, in the vicinity of Lake Okechobee, and on the borders of the cypress swamps and everglades. I rode side by side with volunteer Captains, at the head of their companies. I found them brave, generous-hearted, and ever ready and active in the performance of their duties.

In regard to the necessity of military knowledge, I am confident that we are the friends of that grand principle, "The Sovereignty of the People," to which the Rulers of the Old World are continually referring. Our progress inspires the down-trodden masses with the spirit of freedom, which is their inalienable right, and which, I believe, must cause the destruction of their present political organization.

In 1789 our present Constitution was adopted, fathered by such men as Washington, Madison, and Jay, and ratified by the people. It was the greatest legacy of the wisdom of heart who ever appeared to redeem a nation. Since the adoption of this Constitution, the progress of our nation has been wonderful. What vast acquisitions we have already made in area of Territory, in science, in art, in power, and in the mind. We are about making a railroad to the Pacific, and we are honestly striving to extend our domain to the Pacific Ocean, and to control the routes across the isthmus. Should the nations of Europe attempt to oppose us, we must be ready to meet them, if need be, at the point of the bayonet. France once sent a twentieth part of her population to combat the allied armies of England, Prussia, and Austria. We would do less, and we have over twenty-five millions of people.

But we must be careful lest our great prosperity should be our downfall. There are ever battles to be fought, and we must prepare for them. The interests and welfare of our country must be the first consideration in our minds, and in the glory of our country is their pride. We must be successful as a nation governing a continent, and must become one of the most powerful nations on the globe.

The great men who founded our Government were all celebrated for their patriotism and for their religion. Let us imitate these virtues, for they are the only true basis of our greatness. Let us be patriotic and religious, and we will be successful. Without patriotism to defend our country, its rights would be trampled upon by the nations of the world.

One of the most ennobling lessons at the U. S. Military Academy is that of patriotism. It is the duty of every citizen to be patriotic. It is the duty of every citizen to be patriotic. It is the duty of every citizen to be patriotic.

The rising sun, type of our national progress, glides the gray sky with untiring persistence. The sun, type of our national progress, glides the gray sky with untiring persistence. The sun, type of our national progress, glides the gray sky with untiring persistence.

THE FRIENDS OF THE PEOPLE—We are the friends of that grand principle, "The Sovereignty of the People," to which the Rulers of the Old World are continually referring. Our progress inspires the down-trodden masses with the spirit of freedom, which is their inalienable right, and which, I believe, must cause the destruction of their present political organization.

BY TELEGRAPH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Sens. The House bill for the relief of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was taken up, and considerable debate ensued on the question of whether to pass it or to refer it to the Committee on Public Lands. The matter was subsequently laid over.

The Invalid Pension bill was taken up and passed.

Mr. Benjamin, of La., reported a substitute for the bill introduced by Mr. Mason, authorizing the President to employ the forces of the United States. The substitute was ordered to be printed.

The first section gives power to the President, whenever he may deem it appropriate, to employ the transit routes to be obstructed or closed by lawless vessels, or that an attack is threatened against the persons or property of our citizens, to use the land and naval forces to prevent the threatened injury on condition that the forces are withdrawn as soon as the object is accomplished.

The second section gives power in case of actual violence to the persons or property of our citizens in any of the Central American States or in Mexico, to use the land and naval forces in exacting instant redress, the forces to be withdrawn as soon as the object is accomplished.

The third section requires an immediate report to Congress by the President, of all he may do under the provisions of the first and second sections of the act.

The Pacific Railroad bill, as amended, was then taken up.

Mr. Davis, of Miss., moved to strike out all after the enacting clause, and adopt his minority report, the main features of which are as follows:

That the route of the Pacific Railroad be constructed in sections of land per mile to construct the road, the money appropriated to be refunded in the form of bonds to the Treasury. No terminals are named, no monopoly given to any special company, and the road to run from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He believed that the road could be built over a certain route on these terms, and made a long speech on the subject.

Mr. Davis spoke for three hours, strongly advocating the Southern route, and gave large details of the topography of the route to show that it is the shortest and cheapest route from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He believed that the road could be built over a certain route on these terms, and made a long speech on the subject.
